

The Dog Who Chose Me

...and the Dream That Finally Came True

NJ Walker | Children's Book Author

Long before she published the Biscuit the Pit Adventures, NJ Walker fell in love with reading. When life brought circumstances she could not control, stories offered a place of comfort, imagination, and escape.

She began writing her first book in high school, but doubts about whether it was “good enough” kept her from pursuing that dream. Years later, an unexpected encounter with a dog named Biscuit helped give that dream a new direction.

Stories of faith, kindness, laughter, and second chances — inspired by the dog who chose his own forever family.

Three Adventures. One Remarkable Dog.

The Heart of the Series

Biscuit's adventures celebrate friendship, compassion, humor, and seeing beyond appearances. Each story is an invitation to read together, laugh together, and talk about kindness.

Sometimes the Best Stories Find Us

On an extremely hot day, a pit bull approached NJ Walker while she was out walking. She was apprehensive at first, aware of the stigma surrounding the breed. But the dog kept following her, refusing to leave her side.

NJ made him a promise: if he waited outside the store, she would return with water and something to eat.

When she came out, he was still sitting there, waiting.

She became his foster mom while looking for someone to give him a permanent home. But Biscuit had apparently already made his decision. What was supposed to be temporary became forever.

NJ became a happy “foster fail.” Biscuit had chosen his family, and she had found what she calls “the missing piece in my heart.”

“He was the missing piece in my heart.”

That bond inspired NJ to share Biscuit with the world through children’s books — stories that challenge stereotypes and celebrate love, kindness, and the joy of belonging.
